

AUTUMN IN THE WOODS

Little animals are playing at the edge of the wood. They huff and run and roll around together until they fall into a cave that is covered with leaves, making it invisible and secret. Little friends look around - it is a great cave - spacious, cozy, and most importantly – it belongs to no one!

- If we collect a lot of warm things, we are able to make a bed and spend winter together – little Squirrel says happily. I don't want to stay alone, especially for the whole winter.

The other animals support her idea and start to work. The Hedgehog brings the softest leaves as they stick perfectly to his thorns. The Squirrel is very quick - she collects pine needles and small fir tree branches. The Mouse looks for fluff and feathers. When friends finish their work, they lay out the cave with twigs and thorns, and on the top - soft leaves and fluff. The Mouse says:

- What if we get hungry? There is no food in winter!

Little animals are worried. They start looking for a way out.

- After all, there are so many things all around us in autumn! Let's make some food supplies for winter! - the Hedgehog offers.

So the Hedgehog brings apples that fall down from wild apple trees. Later, he finds some wonderful mushrooms, which he dries on a sharp stick. The Squirrel collects a lot of nuts, acorns, and chestnuts. The Mouse brings as much grains as he can carry from the fields.

The friends put the supplies in a special room near their secret cave. The little animals feel much better. This is their first winter in the woods and they are definitely ready for it.
